The missing piece of your retirement plan

We'd all like to make the most of our retirement, and it's important to think about the whole of your finances when planning for the enjoyable retirement you are looking for. Funding for later life is becoming more and more of a concern, with many pensions falling short of expectations and people living longer than in previous years.

Interest-only mortgages are becoming a real issue for many who are finding they have no means of repayment, and increasing numbers of over-55s are looking towards a lifetime mortgage as a way of securing financial stability in later life.

Equity Release could help pay off existing debts or allow you the funds for home improvements. You could afford that special holiday or help your family financially. There's lots to consider but finding the right plan to suit your needs could provide the solution you're looking for. You can choose between one lump sum payment or smaller amounts to draw down as and when you require them, with no repayments to be made, and we're here to help with tailored advice for the choice that's right for you.

The retirement landscape has changed considerably and it's time to consider the role that housing wealth could play in
